Wallner, who will be sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge Telesca on July 20, 2004, could receive a maximum sentence of three years in federal prison and a $250,000 fine.

Shane Wallner is one of nine individuals being prosecuted for distribution of pirated computer software after an eight month investigation by the FBI. The Cybernet investigation was conducted by the FBI's Washington Field Office and prosecuted by Assistant U.S. Attorneys Scott J. Stein from the Eastern District of Virginia, Rick Resnick, from the Western District of New York and Clement McGovern from the Computer Crimes and Intellectual Property Section of the Department of Justice. The defendant was originally charged in the Eastern District of Virginia by way of Information on March 17, 2004, and, with the consent of the Western District of New York, the case was transferred pursuant to Rule 20 to the Western District of New York for disposition.
